CAPT. CHASE FEARED TROUBLE

SEEKS TO SHOW EFFECT ON HIS MIND OF THINGS HE'D HEARD

and Asks Col. Deems if He Hadn't Told of Getting Other Officers Court-Martialled -It Is Shown That the Post Adjutant Might Have Helped Avoid the Tangle.

Some of the reasons underlying the comclaint made by Capt. Arthur W. Chase, S. A., were brought out at yesterday's session of the court-martial in the Army building. Further attempts were made to show that Capt. Chase might have been saved from considerable trouble had the post Adjutant at Fort Howard informed his commanding officer, Lieut.-Col. Clarence Deems, that Capt. Chase was unable because of lack of time and of proper blanks to make reports, for the lack of which Capt. Chase was reprimanded by Lieut,-Col.

A more important feature was brought out when Capt. Chase asked to have Lieut.-('ol. Deems return to the stand as a witness $499,000 to the First National Bank which must first be paid.

Lawyer John J. Kuhn, representing the directors of the Williamsburg Trust Company, who have opposed permanent receivers being named, will appeal to the Appellate Division of the Third Department from Justice Betts's decision on Friday appointing receivers despite the stay granted earlier in the week by Justice Walter Lloyd Smith.

The matter of the receivership for the Borough Bank will come up before Justice Betts in Kingston to-day. Edward M. Shepard, Samuel S. Whitehouse and Paul Grout will appear on behalf of the directors. for the defence when the prosecution closed its case. Capt. Chase said to the court that he intended to ask Lieut.-Col. Deems certain questions which, while they would not reflect in any way upon that officer ersonally, would tend to show why he, Capt. Chase, had believed that the commanding officer was hounding him and trying to get him into difficulties Do you recall ever having had any conversations with the accused at Fort Howard, -martial and charg by you at Manila, P. I.?" asked Capt, Chase of Col. Deems.

Judge Advocate Johnston objected, saying that if the question were admitted it would be necessary probably to wait weeks and months for affidavits corroborative of whatever might have happened at Manila and other places during the forty years service of Lieut.- Col. Deems.

The reply made to this by Capt. Chase outlined the new feature of the defence. Apparently it was intended to prove that many conversations alleged to have been held between Capt. Chase and his commanding officer as to other courts-martial asked for by Lieut.-Col. Deems and as to the circumstances preceding them had convinced Capt. Chase that he was about to be brought before a court-martial when to be brought before a court-martal when a flood of letters poured in on him at Fort Howard from his commanding officer. Papt. Chase's apparent intent was to show that because of preceding conversations and the facts of his own case he was forced to take the action that he did to save himself. The room was cleared again for the con-The room was cleared again for the consideration of this point and when the interested persons were told to return the court ruled in favor of Capt. Chase. This was regarded as an important point in his lavor. He proceeded to repeat the question that had been cut off by the Judge Advocate's abligation.

"I do not recall any such conversation," replied Lieut.-Col. Deems.

"Do you recall ever having had any conversation with the accused at Fort Howard, Md., as to courts-martial and charges made by you against any officer or officers in the district of Puget Sound?" asked Capt. Chase.

"I do not recall any such conversations," replied the commanding officer.
"Do you recall ever having had any conversation with the accused at Fort Howard, Md., as to courts-martial and charges made by you against any officer or officers at Fort Schuyler?" the Captain asked.
"I couldn't recall anything about that," replied Lieut.-Col. Deems, because there was no such incident while I was at Fort Schuyler. I never preferred charges against any officer at Fort Schuyler."

was no such incident while I was at Fort Schuyler. I never preferred charges against any officer at Fort Schuyler."

In the morning session it was brought out by Capt. Chase that he intended to have as a witness to-day Capt. C. F. Morse, the post surgeon. It had been testified by some witnesses that on the occasion of having been censured in the commanding officer's office on November 5 he gave his head an "angry toss" and walked out. Capt. Chase said that his head had a certain inclination because he was suffering from lumbago, aggravated by the rainy weather of the period, and that there was no "angry toss." Capt. Morse will be called to testify concerning the lumbago.

period, and that there was no angry toss. Capt. Merse will be called to testify concerning the lumbago.

Capt. H. H. Whitney, the artillery engineer of the district of Baltimore, who was on the stand when the hearing was adjourned on Saturday, was recalled and gave testimony as to Capt. Chase's actions toward Lieut. Davis when the latter was acting as battery commander. Lieut. S. C. Cardwell of the 103d Company testified that he had misunderstood an indorsement written by Capt. Chase that he should undertake to correct the pistol reports sent back from the adjutant's office. The writing, in pencil, was hastily done while Capt. Chase was on duty in the fire commander's tower, and Lieut. Cardwell said are sould not read certain words. Lieut. Cardwell reindorsed the order, showing that he took the blame for it not having been carried out.

The hearing will go on at 19:10 o'clock this morning, and it is expected that the case will be over by to-morrow.

vestigation of the lumber industry in its bearing on freight rates and had come to the conclusion that transportation charges must be increased in the interests of the railways. On an average haul of 4,000 miles the cost to the railroad was approximately $280 a car, while the revenue from a car was not in excess of $200. This resulted in a loss to the carrier of $80 a car. The difficulty was from the standpoint of the railroad that the cars came East loaded but returned westward empty. The railroads were not attempting to prohibit the traffic in lumber, but were merely imposing rates that would yield a profit. The Grand Jury which was sworn in this month by Judge Charles S. Whitman of General Sessions has paid an unusual compliment to Judge Whitman. In charging the Grand Jury Judge Whitman dealt with the duties of the jurors and an explanation of the law which governed their work. of the law which governed their work.
